“ Each time, back in the day, I visited my sister Carri Skoczek and brother David Hurd we would stop in the right bank to visit Kerry and the crew, have one or six, eat a burger, listen to music, set up for the mermaid parade, be in the presence of the creation of the mermaid show and set up the mermaid show...

What was more intoxicating than the liquor served was the connective, creative, go ahead and just be you energy that swirled and embraced everyone. It was magical. It was Kerry.

*RIPXO,
Shari*

“ Kerry was always a kind and generous man, I moved to New York from Kentucky in 1991 and remembering The Right Bank Cafe as an amazing place to gather after a day in the sometimes dehumanizing city. I met several amazing friends there. His spirit will continue in the souls he touched. A crowd of characters came from all places to find refuge in Kerry's habitat...peace on earth

“ Thanks Kerry for decade of your hospitality. You always knew when to place free pitcher of beer in front of me and treated the Korean gangs with open arms. Have a toast with Chan S Chung where you are. You were a real cool dude. RIP.

“ Kerry owned the Right Bank, where many of us gathered to enjoy ourselves. He offered his spaces for an art gallery, meetings for the community, benefits, poetry readings and music. He touched so many lives and allowed art to blossom that he will live forever in many many hearts and minds. Had my first solo art show there, held a benefit for Transportation for me and many meetings for the Williamsburg Walkway. Thank you Kerry.

“ I first met Kerry, Sr a zillion years ago. His son Kerry, Jr was just a young boy, who later became the cousins to my 2 oldest sons. I didn't often see Kerry, Sr but what I recall was a smiling gentleman. My heart & prayers are with Kerry, Jr and his family at this time.

I met Kerry when I was a fireman and he was a newly promoted Lieutenant working in Engine 10. He was such a quiet friendly person you couldn't help but like him. My sorrows to his family and may he rest in peace.
